SATURDAY EVENING, MAR 17, 1898.

THE PRINCE AND PRESIDENT.

Prince Albert of Belgium—his royal highness—was the guest of honor last night at a dinner given by the President and Mrs. McKinley, and which, by reason of the number of lovely guests and the picturesqueness of that bode even a future king, was probably the most thoroughly delightful it may not rank as the most inspiring banquet given at the White House this year.

The Executive Mansion was decorated with the floral magnificence usual on such occasions, the East room showing even a more elaborate profusion of flowers of gorgeous hue. Down the center of the vast room were placed mounds of tropical foliage, and tall palms and bay trees screened the east window entirely from view. The space over each door was filled with annunciation lilies, scarlet azaleas and purple hyacinths; the mantels were massed with thousands of creamy roses, and at every point on the ceiling, the walls, mirrors and chandeliers were garlands of delicate vines whose lace-like tendrils were almost as ethereal as sea spray.

The table was laid in the main corridor, and down its length were placed, alternately, oval and circular plats of magnificence, in which were bedded pink roses, wax blooms and orchids of every exquisite shade. Tall crystal vases of pink roses, together with ferns and orchids, arranged in golden baskets, were interspersed with floral set pieces, and down the entire length of the board were grouped gilt chandeliers, with their clusters of white candles burning under crimson shades.

The guests, as usual, were received in the East room by the President and Mrs. McKinley, and the way to the banquet hall was culminated by the Marine band, which was stationed in the conservatory, and rendered splendid selections throughout the evening, under the direction of Prof. Santelmann, who made his first appearance last night as the leader of the band. After dinner, when the company had adjourned to the drawing room, Mr. Leo Stern gave a beautiful solo on the "cello," accompanied on the piano by Mr. Luckstone.

To be thoroughly in accord with his incognito the Prince wore no decoration to distinguish him from the other gentlemen present, but like them wore conventional evening dress and snowy tie. He escorted Mrs. McKinley to the table, the President leading with Mrs. Hobart. Count Liechtenvelde took in Mrs. Hitt, and the Countess Liechtenvelde's escort was Vice President Hobart.

I desire to attest to the merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as one of the most valuable and efficient preparations on the market. It broke an exceedingly dangerous cough for me in 24 hours, and in gratitude thereof, I desire to inform you that I will never be without it and you should feel proud of the esteem in which your Remedies are held by people in general. It is the one remedy among ten thousand, success to it.—O. R. DOWNY, Editor Chamberlain, Albion, Ind. For sale by J. H. Janney, Druggist, 701 King Street.
